Jim and Carter,

Just a heads up that I just referred this reporter to DHS OPA for this inquiry. I spoke with the local ICE PAO who is also referring to DHS and we are also coordinating with local CBP on this. The FOIA was submitted by the Mass. AG and enjoined by 10 other Attorneys General across the U.S. You may want to alert the other PAOs that they may be receiving inquiries as well. If you have any further guidance for me, please let me know.

Hi Paula,

How are you?

We are posting a story about this request by the Massachusetts AG and 10 other AG offices across the country.

Could you please respond so we can include any comment from your office?

Specifically, the AGs are accusing federal officials of keeping the information they seek away from the public and that is why they say they have taken this action. Attached is the FOIA request that has been sent.

Thanks. Maria Cramer Boston Globe

AG HEALEY ISSUES FREEDOM OF INFORMATION REQUEST ABOUT THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT'S IMMIGRATION POLICIES AND ENFORCEMENT

Leads Coalition of 10 Attorneys General in Demanding Documents from Trump Administration

BOSTON – Attorney General Maura Healey today led a coalition of 10 attorneys general in demanding that the Trump Administration turn over documents and other information relating to the detention and deportation of immigrants.

The attorneys general issued Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests to U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS), and U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP), seeking details regarding Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA), arrests and/or detentions of individuals at sensitive locations, including courthouses and jobsites, and ICE or CBP detainer requests and databases.

"The Trump Administration has stoked fear across the country through its Executive Orders targeting immigrant communities, and they cannot continue to operate in the dark," AG Healey said. "Our states, cities, and local law enforcement need real information about how federal immigration policies are being enforced in our communities in order to serve the public and keep people safe."

In the request, the attorneys general reference local and national media reports of the deportation of individuals approved for DACA, individuals meeting with federal immigration officials to discuss their status, and even U.S. citizens.

The attorneys general are seeking information from federal agencies about the detention and deportation of individuals approved for DACA and immigration enforcement at sensitive locations – which include hospitals, courthouses and school grounds. Some of the specific information the attorneys general have requested include information about the detention or deportation of any individual previously granted approval or extension of DACA, data about detainers requests issued by ICE or CBP, memos related to ICE or CBP-designated sensitive locations, and information about arrests and/or detentions within 100 feet of a courthouse.

Earlier this year, AG Healey issued guidance to health care providers and local public school districts in Massachusetts following inquiries from health care providers and public school officials about the impact of federal immigration policies and executive orders on patients and students. This guidance followed an advisory the AG's Office also sent this year reminding local public school districts of their obligation under state and federal law to provide all students with equal access to primary and secondary education, irrespective of citizenship or immigration status.

Led by the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office, the other members of the coalition seeking this information include the attorneys general of California, Hawaii, Iowa, Illinois, Maryland, New York, Oregon, Washington and the District of Columbia.

Hi Elly:

You may attribute the following to USCIS officials or say Pamela Wilson, USCIS Public Affairs Officer in Atlanta provided an official statement

USCIS Statement:

A termination of DACA and any associated employment authorization granted during the period of deferred action can occur if a recipient commits a disqualifying action following a grant of DACA. A disqualifying action would include any instance that would have prevented a requestor from receiving deferred action, had it occurred prior to the DACA grant.

These include:

- Conviction for a felony offense, a significant misdemeanor offense, or three or more misdemeanors.
- The individual poses a threat to public safety or national security. Indicators of such threat include, but are not limited to, gang membership, participation in criminal activities, or participation in activities that threaten the United States.
- Fraud found to have been committed in the process of seeking deferral of removal under DACA.

Travel outside the United States on or after Aug. 15, 2012, without first receiving advance parole also automatically terminates deferred action under DACA.

Additionally, DACA is an exercise of prosecutorial discretion and deferred action may be terminated at any time, with or without the issuance of a Notice of Intent to Terminate, at DHS's discretion.

As always, Anita, I thank you for your very helpful response.

I take the point that any and all statements would have to come from ICE of the immigration court.

Susan

Pardon my delay in responding to you. USCIS is not able to provide an interview due to staffing availability. Regarding the various reasons for deportation, that would have to be addressed by ICE or the immigration court as USCIS does not make such determinations.

Can someone who has applied for a U-visa not receive it, even if the individual has, for instance, a minor traffic record?

Petitioners must meet all qualifications. Link for qualifications here. If they are barred because they have any of thegrounds of inadmissibility, they must apply for a waiver of those grounds.

And, if someone already has a U-visa and is arrested, for instance, for DUI, would that person lose the visa and be deported?

This would have to be addressed by ICE or the immigration court as USCIS does not make such determinations. (www.ice.gov/eoir).

In other words, which will carry more weight — the U-visa or the Administration's very strong focus on deporting undocumented immigrants?

This would have to be addressed by ICE or the immigration court. (www.ICE.gov and www.justice.gov/eoir).

I do understand that a visa IS documentation — but would that particular documentation be sufficient to prevent any kind of deportation order?

Regarding deportation after a visa is granted is a matter to be taken to ICE or immigration court. Cancellation of ones benefit is determined by immigration judge and not USCIS.

Anita —

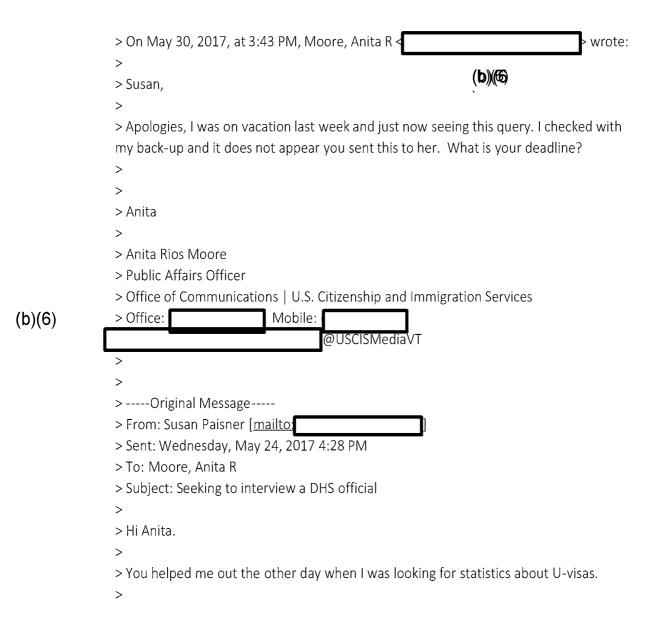

I'm working on a flexible deadline. I was hoping to conduct all my interviews by the end of this week, but given that it's a shortened week, by mid-week next week.

Does that give you enough time to set up an interview?

And I didn't contact your back-up because I have this flexibility in writing the story — so I figured I'd wait until you returned (!!).

I appreciate your apology — but it's not necessary.

Good morning,

As Paula mentioned, we have not created an entire PAG, but do have talking points that we are using on the issue.

I can provide what we are using, but I can't give direction on your use of them, and would refer you to any CSPE policy on using media talking points.

"It is the policy and practice of USCIS to fully cooperate with law enforcement partners in the performance of their duties. I must refer you to [NAME OF AGENCY] for additional details."

If the arrest is in relation to an ongoing case, which it will be, and you are pressed for if it is a new process - you may use the following if cleared through your local ICE PAO as well:

"It is the standard practice of USCIS to notify ICE if we have individuals at our offices who have warrants of deportation or are in proceedings."

Thanks,

Jim

Subject: ICE arrests at USCIS Field Offices

Hi Amany,

There has been some recent media attention re: 5 arrests that took place at a USCIS Field Office when the individuals showed up for interviews. It appears that each of these individuals had final orders of removal, 3 of the 5 had traffic violations, while 2 had no criminal history. At this point, I don't have any specifics (e.g. whether there were active warrants in addition to the outstanding removal orders), but I reached out to FOD to see if they could learn more re: these specifics and potential consistency in field referral policies. I'm including the coverage I've seen in the daily USCIS Briefings below.

I'm not sure if this is something CSPED is already attuned to, but I wanted to touch base and see if you had heard about this, or had any insight as to whether this may be happening more broadly? Of course, with ICE's priority list expanded, these types of arrests are likely to become more commonplace.

Thanks,

Nidhi

ICE Arrests Five Heading To Scheduled USCIS Appointments.

WBUR-FM Boston (3/30, Dooling) reports that five individuals in Lawrence, Massachusetts were arrested Wednesday when they showed up for scheduled appointments at USCIS. While ICE had orders to detain all give, the article confirms that at least three of those individuals were in the process of becoming legal permanent residents. One of those individuals is a Brazilian woman married to a US citizen who was previously deported. Her lawyer Brian Doyle noted that they knew there was a chance she would be arrested.

Arrests Of Immigrants At USCIS Mark "Dramatic Shift" In Policy For ICE.

The North Andover (MA) Eagle Tribune (4/1, Eddings) reports that Massachusetts man Leandro Arriaga was arrested by ICE officers as he and his wife, Katherine, were finishing interviews at the USCIS office in Lawrence on Wednesday. The Tribune says the interview was "a first step in the process needed to gain legal residency status for Leandro" and that his marriage was deemed "valid." Despite being told that his Green Card application would advance, Arriaga was taken by federal immigration agents, who were waiting for him.

WBUR-FM Boston (4/2, Dooling) says that "Arriaga is a construction worker, a property owner and the father of four children" who has been living in the US without authorization for 16 years. This, the piece notes, is "what ultimately got him arrested last week by U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) officials."

Arriaga's lawyer knew the USCIS meeting would be "a risk," given that Arriaga "did have an order of deportation out against him," The Guardian (UK) (4/1, Zalkind) reports. The piece says, however, the lawyer had never had a "client detained at a US Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) meeting before." The Guardian reports Arriaga's arrest, along with that of at least three others in the state while similarly applying for green cards, "marks a dramatic shift in immigration policy, say attorneys and experts."

Five people in total were arrested by ICE on Wednesday "when they arrived at their scheduled appointments at the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) office in Lawrence, Massachusetts," Teen Vogue (4/1, De Elizabeth) reports. According to Brian Doyle, the lawyer for one of those arrested, "ICE officials have the authority to do this, but it's not typical, as these people were taking the proper legal steps towards becoming citizens."

The Boston Globe (3/31, Valencia) similarly referred to this as a "newly aggressive approach" by federal immigration authorities, which has "alarmed immigrant advocates," who also say it "could have a chilling effect on immigrants who are taking steps to obtain lawful residency." Chair of the New England chapter of the American Immigration Lawyers Association Susan Church said, "They respond to an interview that was scheduled by the government, they listen to the government, show up when they're supposed to, and they're arrested."

The arrests "prompted a protest march through downtown Lawrence Friday afternoon," the North Andover (MA) Eagle Tribune (3/31, Tennant) also reported. Police Chief James Fitzpatrick is quoted as saying the protest drew about 100 people, who shouted "Si se puede!" ("Yes we can!"). The Tribune noted "many of the marchers carried signs with pro-immigrant messages such as 'Somos todos inmigrantes' (We are all immigrants) and 'Immigrants are welcome.""

Fusion (3/31, Krueger) provided similar coverage.

Jim and Carter,

Just a heads up that I just referred this reporter to DHS OPA for this inquiry. I spoke with the local ICE PAO who is also referring to DHS and we are also coordinating with local CBP on this. The FOIA was submitted by the Mass. AG and enjoined by 10 other Attorneys General across the U.S. You may want to alert the other PAOs that they may be receiving inquiries as well. If you have any further guidance for me, please let me know.

Hi Paula,

How are you?

We are posting a story about this request by the Massachusetts AG and 10 other AG offices across the country. Could you please respond so we can include any comment from your office?

Specifically, the AGs are accusing federal officials of keeping the information they seek away from the public and that is why they say they have taken this action. Attached is the FOIA request that has been sent.

Thanks.

AG HEALEY ISSUES FREEDOM OF INFORMATION REQUEST ABOUT THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT'S IMMIGRATION POLICIES AND ENFORCEMENT

Leads Coalition of 10 Attorneys General in Demanding Documents from Trump Administration

BOSTON – Attorney General Maura Healey today led a coalition of 10 attorneys general in demanding that the Trump Administration turn over documents and other information relating to the detention and deportation of immigrants.

The attorneys general issued Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests to U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS), and U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP), seeking details regarding Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA), arrests and/or detentions of individuals at sensitive locations, including courthouses and jobsites, and ICE or CBP detainer requests and databases.

"The Trump Administration has stoked fear across the country through its Executive Orders targeting immigrant communities, and they cannot continue to operate in the dark," AG Healey said. "Our states, cities, and local law enforcement need real information about how federal immigration policies are being enforced in our communities in order to serve the public and keep people safe."

In the request, the attorneys general reference local and national media reports of the deportation of individuals approved for DACA, individuals meeting with federal immigration officials to discuss their status, and even U.S. citizens.

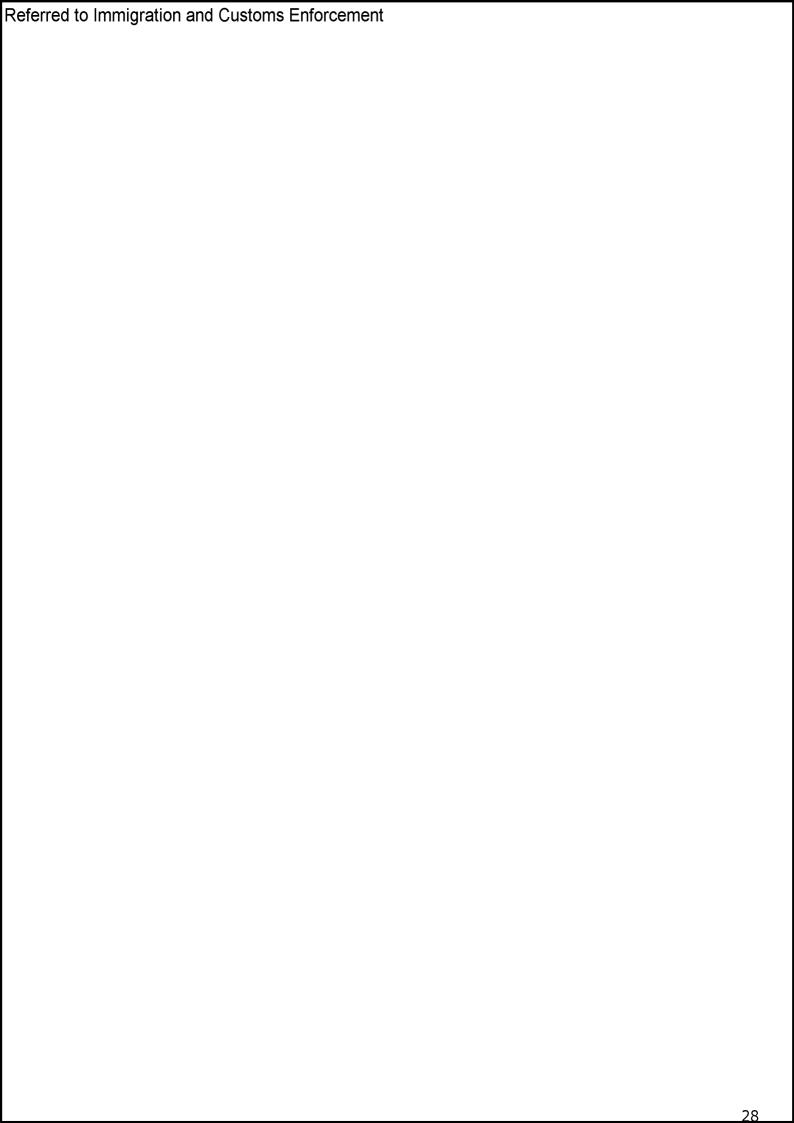

The attorneys general are seeking information from federal agencies about the detention and deportation of individuals approved for DACA and immigration enforcement at sensitive locations – which include hospitals, courthouses and school grounds. Some of the specific information the attorneys general have requested include information about the detention or deportation of any individual previously granted approval or extension of DACA, data about detainers requests issued by ICE or CBP, memos related to ICE or CBP-designated sensitive locations, and information about arrests and/or detentions within 100 feet of a courthouse.

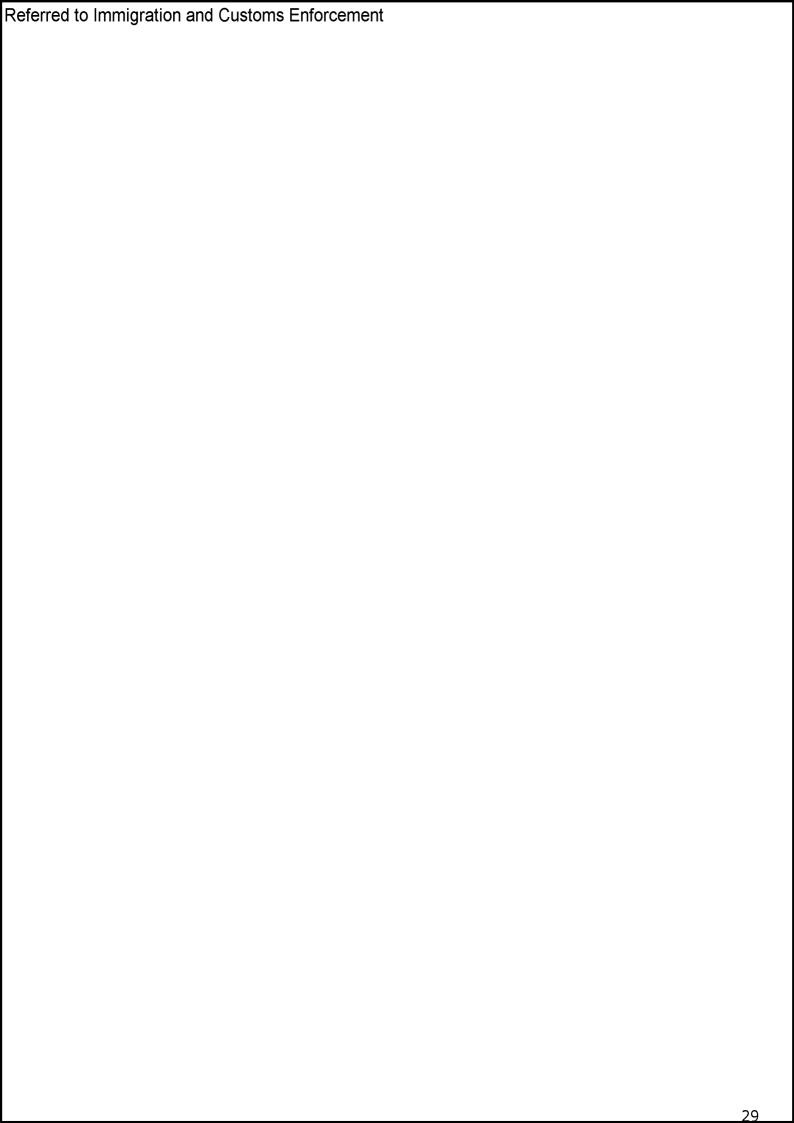

Earlier this year, AG Healey issued guidance to health care providers and local public school districts in Massachusetts following inquiries from health care providers and public school officials about the impact of federal immigration policies and executive orders on patients and students. This guidance followed an advisory the AG's Office also sent this year reminding local public school districts of their obligation under state and federal law to provide all students with equal access to primary and secondary education, irrespective of citizenship or immigration status.

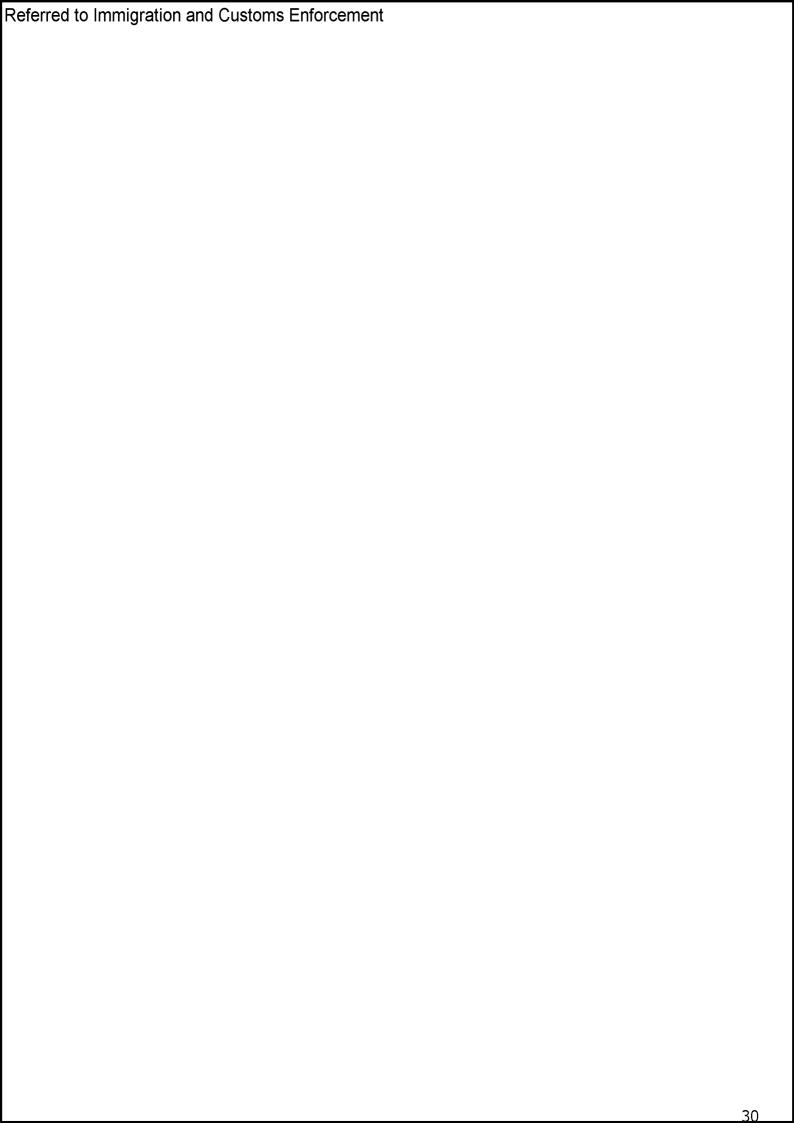

Led by the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office, the other members of the coalition seeking this information include the attorneys general of California, Hawaii, Iowa, Illinois, Maryland, New York, Oregon, Washington and the District of Columbia.

If USCIS has a breakdown by city or county, that would be even more helpful. Attached you will find U visa data by state for FY 2016 his data set is not pulled on a regular basis and this is the first time we've received it by state. Thus, no data by state for both the 2017 time frames you requested access our national information here. As vou'll see, this data is for (b)(5)FY2017 through quarter one (ending Dec. 2016). I'm also seeking confirmation that the national cap on U-visas is still 10,000 a year. The statutory limit on the number of U visas that may be granted to principal petitioners each year is 10,000. Lastly, how long is the estimated wait for a U-visa and does being on that waiting list guarantee a victim will not be deported? You can find processing times for U Visas here. This report is as of (b)(5)2017. At that time, USCIS was working on visas Feb received on or after June 9, 2014. Individuals with U petitions that are approvable but for the cap will be placed on a waiting list (deferred action) for when visas become available*. Although being placed on a waiting list or deferred action does not confer a lawful immigration status, an individual's period of stay is authorized by the Department of Homeland Security while their deferred action is in effect and, for admissibility purposes, are considered to be lawfully present in the United States during that time. CBP or ICE should (b)(5)exercise their discretion on a case-bycase basis to prevent qualifying individuals from being apprehended, placed into removal proceedings, or removed. Ultimately, ICE and the immigration courts make the final determination.

^{*}It should be noted that all eligibility requirements must continue to be met at the time of U visa petition approval when a U visa becomes available.
